

Website form

Website pages

Landing page

Legal Disclaimers

campaign

FAQ page

Infographics

Product User guide

Biography

Designing content type

I thought they said fishes!

Service page

Bog posts

Product page

Email Marketing

PDF

Video

Press releases

Social Media post

Girlfridayz fishing leads & customers through content

What is content type inventory

Content-type is a term content strategist used and technologist gurus use to represent a piece of content. Thus; content capture the type of information being represented. The above card highlight 17 content types you can use in your marketing arsenal.

An inventory content type requires you to review your current content. You need to document it and capture details around the author. With elements such as where he/she lives and other information pertaining to your message. This task can be lengthy or speedy depending on how much content you processing. Because a distribution channel website provides the most robust content distribution you can apply these principles to any type of UX design and link, upload, download content type to a relevant page for visitors accessibility.